I'm using the following code to generate the jQuery tab structure for my project:

```
firstname;?>
```

I'd also like to get the selected value of each user in order to populate that user's web form. In my jQuery code I have the following:

$("#tab-content a").on('click', function(e){ e.preventDefault(); $("#tab-content").find("[data-toggle="tab"]").click(); });

How can I find the user's firstname and/or id value? A: The "id" attribute can be used to display extra information:

```
John Doe $.each(your_json_object_or_array, function(index, element){ $("#user_info").append(" + element.firstname +
"); });

While the "data-*" attributes should be used to store the id/value of something that you
